The "Alliance" on Angels.

Angels are not popular now a-days. The artists who have depicted them as a couple between a town and a fashion-plate have been laid responsible for this attitude of the public mind towards angels, of whom it may be said that they are not so perfect as they have been painted. For a human being with feathered accompaniment is as much of a monstrosity as a centaur. That Raphael has the here-bacon popularity, in spite of their sprouting bigot wings, The C. r. a. arabs, we believe, hold that as a part of their creed. But why the wings should be fitted to the shoulders, blacks, as though they had been attached by Spaulding's glue, is one of those things that no fellow but an artist could discover. But there are angels without wings, who are nearly as monstrous to the light-minded, as those which the artists have created. There are a good many of them in the world. They are not so good. As the honest saying goes, "Butter would not melt in their mouths." They have no temper. You can not get them mad. They never swear. The sins of impulse are never to be had to them. They are never rough. They are never impulsive. They never say things they are sorry for afterwards. They are never ridiculous. They do not cheat. They do not steal. They are cold. The angel's hand is like a fish. He never grasps you as though he meant never to let you go. He does not rise into the ranks of strong feeling, never does a noble, impulsive act. The human angel is a very negative affair; there is nothing positive about him. His virtues and vices are alike negative. And we hate him as nature is said to abhor a vacuum. Better a vacuum heated since a cold-blooded angel. It was thought, for a long time, that George Washington was an angel. Time and patriotism, with over the kind minds, had smoothed away the roughness of his character, and left him with a good-godly reputation; that, as Theodore Parker once said, it was a post-reve to know that the ones swore at Lee. The boy preacher, judicious of the distance which we are careful to keep from him, is an angel. He is so good that he says it sometimes seems to him that he will not die, but will be transmuted, like Noah of old. It is a pity that all the angels can not be transmuted into a beau new suit of feathers. This world has no use for angels, nor for any beings "too bright and good for human nature's daily food."

A Story of Speculation.

According to the story in the New York Times, J. C. Gould had a narrow escape from a fit run about three years ago, and was so hard pressed by Keene and several other operators and co-operators in Union Pacific, that his once-garished wealth was a spectator of the whole affair, and, gliding softly from a private door, mounted the rumble of the carriage and found himself whirled on the road to Mineburg, the lake port of the Mobile packet.

The old fellow had caught them. The lovers were in the carriage, but he was on the box. On rattled the carriage to the steamboat landing. Down jumped the father and opened the door. "What did he see?" "Could it be?" Yes, it was his own hostler and his daughter's maid! The affrighted servants descended from the carriage, and in an agony which was so extreme they could not refrain from shouting, fell on their knees and begged for mercy. The driver of the carriage, and the father, and the lady were married at the house of a friend.—New Orleans Letter in the Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Comedy of Errors.

The talk of the town is an elopement that proved to be a "Comedy of Errors." A rich old crook opposed the marriage of his only daughter with a poor artist. One evening there was a carriage drawn cautiously up to the corner of the grand boulevard Esplanade. There was an air of mystery in its movements. The driver looked around and then apparently, from some signal, fixed his eyes at the window of a mansion very little distant from his halting place. A female form, cloaked and veiled, threw open the easement, at the same moment bidding the driver advance. He did so, and when the carriage stood immediately at the door, beneath the lighted window, a tall and handsome man jumped out of the vehicle and entered the house. Shortly after this two cloaked figures passed hurriedly down the steps of the main entrance and hastily entered the carriage, closing the door and requested the driver to "speed like lightning." An old gentleman, the father of the man and the father of the artist's mother, was a spectator of the whole affair, and, gliding softly from a private door, mounted the rumble of the carriage and found himself whirled on the road to Mineburg, the lake port of the Mobile packet.

The old fellow had caught them. The lovers were in the carriage, but he was on the box. On rattled the carriage to the steamboat landing. Down jumped the father and opened the door. B. STINE, THE "BOSS" CLOTHIER.

If you ask them "Why so much liberality?" they will answer, "To make room for our New Spring Stock!" and if you take a glance at their assortment you will not only find an old stock worth 50 cents on the dollar, but plenty of room to place an entire new stock.

To offset all these silly advertisements, the meaning of which is generally understood by the public,

B. STINE, THE "BOSS" CLOTHIER, will not only duplicate any article bought at all places where they claim to sell at and below cost, but instead of shopworn goods, will furnish you

Oscar's Lemonade

Straying into the bar of the Louisville Hotel last Monday evening under the mistaken impression that it was the reading room, I had the pleasure of hearing Mr. Oscar Wilde's representative order a lemonade for his esthetic charge.Wilde explained the agent the bar tender feels the necessity of some slight refreshment before going to the drill this evening, and I wrote to him a mild draught which is to be compounded with the utmost care so that the component parts will assimilate into one utterly harmonious whole. You will be good enough, if you please to mix a few drops of pure, fresh lemon juice with a small quantity of cl. a sparkling spring water that does not possess the properties, adding sufficient sachem to overcome its excessive acidity, and thenOh! h! - and the bartender professed turning to his assistant, he had given the squeeze of a lemon and deviously adding a spoonful of sugar, half a pint of brandy, Oh! water, a handful of chopped apple, and a piece of canned pine apple for floaters. he duly remarked Fifteen cents.How strange it is that so many public speakers are compelled to resort to the use of stimulants.A case was recently decided in a Canadian court which establishes an important point as to the rights of church worshippers. The defendant was a gentleman who rented a pew in a church and was accustomed to sit during the sermon and whisper to the minister that he was there.
The minister rebuked him and that he sought to compel him to give up his pew. He refused to do so and took his stand upon the fundamental position that he paid for pew that it is his own and that he could do what he pleased with it.
The brethren in the church brought suit against him, charging him with pertaining immorality. The court decided that a pew is like a birthright, the person who hates it can sleep or stay awake and sleep or not as seems good and true. Furthermore, as soon as it is given up, it is not the right of the church to demand it back. The person who hates it can sleep or stay awake
and true.The president and cabinet members are expected at the capitol Monday at 11:30 a.m. They will be shown immorality upon their armaments, a committee from where they will be exposed. After the honor has been called they will be announced and ushered in orderly to the hall of representatives and take the seats assigned to them.WALDEN Feb. 2. The conference on rules with the house into session by reporting a resolution providing for the appointment of a special committee to consider all proposals relative to female suffrage.
Azen men were instantly on the foot trying to get the speakers for the purpose of interposing points of order and objections. Each tried to speak louder than the other and the speakers strong, lungs and rapidly pounds, gave only added to the general confusion. It only ended when the speaker was brought to a standstill by the majority. Quite a number of the members dodged the roll call. The opposition was strong on the Democratic side and only a few of them voted affirmatively.
Each branch of congress now has a committee specially charged with the duty of hearing petitions and speeches from women and considering bills and resolutions touching the rights of women to be permitted to vote.WALDEN Feb. 2. It is unfortunate that the widow of President will be granted a pension of $2000 a year. She is said to be in very poor circumstances and the committee to whom the matter was referred are inclined to consider her

There were two additions to the choir today. They were Charles Fogelin and a man named Walfers. Fogelin has a $25 fine standing opposite his name on Justice Corley's docket.

Mr. W. W. Wood is home from Michigan.
Mrs. E. S. McCarty is ill at her home on East Eldorado street.

Will S. Stevenson has returned home from New Orleans.

Mrs. Hugh Cress and daughter started for Florida to-day. They will be absent until May or June.

E. Bankson, of the Sullivan Journal, broke his fast at the St. Nicholas this morning.

Ralph W. Drew returned from his Raymond trip last evening. While there he indulged in the pleasures of hunting.

Mrs. Thomas Hamilton departed for Chicago this morning, accompanied by her niece, Mrs. Frank Kramer. They will be absent for several days. They will visit various friends, and see the sights in and about the Garden City.

L. J. Davis presided at the Y. M. C. A. meeting yesterday afternoon. The subject, "Salvation," was one of great interest, and enlisted the attention of the entire audience.

Weldon Coltrin has recovered from an attack of varioid which downed him at Green Bay, Wisconsin. Amos Bain, formerly of the defunct Sunday Blade, is said to be ill with the small-pox at the same town.

Lawyer E. P. Vail and H. B. Durfee have gone to Frederick, Maryland, on a duck hunting expedition. They will be absent until Thursday or Friday, and intend to return with 500 ducks more or less.

Hon. John B. Finch, of Lincoln, Neb., has been engaged and will deliver a series of five lectures on prohibition, in Danville, about the middle of March. Mr.
Finch is an able, eloquent speaker and advances the cause of temperance where-ever he goes.

Springfield Monitor, 27th: Ex-Adm.
John L. Rount of Denver, who arrived in this city Friday night, as heretofore mentioned, and in company with friends here, made a careful inspection of the new Christian church on Saturday. The latter was a finished artist, and taken as a whole, was fully equal to the best that has been given in the hall for many years. It began with a picnic party, and ended with a trip across the confinement in a Pullman car, during which many pleasing songs were sung by different characters, among which were solos from various popular operas. The acts of the Daily Bros. and Mr. Mastayer were particularly good, while the singing of the beautiful contralto, Miss Vaughan, won further repeated rounds. Prof. Muller's violin solo, "The Barnyard," was also one of the principal treats of the evening.
The Monitor departed for St. Louis on Sunday morning, when they opened last night for a week. Come again.
